Contributors

Khaled Anatolios is Professor of Historical and Systematic Theology at Boston College School of Theology and Ministry. Among his publications are: Retrieving Nicene: The Development and Meaning of Trinitarian Doctrine (Baker Academic, 2011); Athanasius. The Coherence of his Thought (Routledge: 1998 & 2004); and the Athanasius volume of the Routledge Early Church Fathers series (2004).

Mark Armitage lives in England, where he studied Theology at the Universities of Oxford and Durham. He is the author of A Twofold Solidarity: Leo the Great's Theology of Redemption, and has written on Leo, Thomas Aquinas, and G. K. Chesterton for Marianum, New Blackfriars, Nova et Vetera, The Thomist, Pro Ecclesia, and The Chesterton Review.

Michael Patrick Barber is the Chair of the Graduate Program in Biblical Theology at John Paul the Great University in San Diego, California. He completed his Ph.D. in Theology at Fuller in Pasadena, CA, writing a dissertation entitled, “The Historical Jesus and Cultic Restoration Eschatology: The New Temple, the New Priesthood, and the New Cult” (2010). Barber also earned an M.A. in Theology from Franciscan University and a B.A. in Theology and Philosophy from Azusa Pacific University. He has published a number of popular books on Scripture. With two other Senior Fellows of the St. Paul Center, John Bergsma and Brant Pitre, Dr. Barber writes for the weblog, www.TheSacredPage.com, a site affiliated with the Society of Biblical Literature. He lives in San Diego, CA, with his wife Kimberly and their three children.

Scott W. Hahn, founder and president of the St. Paul Center for Biblical Theology is professor of Scripture and Theology at Franciscan University of Steubenville, Ohio. He has held the Pio Cardinal Laghi Chair at the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio, the Pope Benedict XVI Chair of Biblical Theology and Liturgical Proclamation at St. Vincent Seminary in Latrobe, Pennsylvania (2005-2011), and has served as visiting professor at the Pontifical University of the Holy Cross and the Pontifical University, Regina Apostolorum,
Contributors

~ Stephen Hildebrand ~

Stephen Hildebrand is an Associate Professor of Theology and Director of the Master’s Program in Theology at Franciscan University of Steubenville. He received his Ph.D. in Historical Theology from Fordham University in 2002. He published The Trinitarian Theology of Basil of Caesarea (CUA press) in 2007 and a translation of St. Basil’s On the Holy Spirit (St. Vladimir’s Seminary Press) in 2011. Most recently, he has translated Robert Grosseteste’s On the Cessation of the Law in CUAs Fathers of the Church, Medieval Continuation series.

~ Fr. William Kurz, S.J. ~

~ Matthew Levering ~

Matthew Levering is Professor of Theology at the University of Dayton. With Reinhard Hütter, he is co-editor of the theological quarterly Nova et Vetera. He is Chair of the Board of the Academy of Catholic Theology and serves as the Director of the University of Dayton’s Center for Scriptural Exegesis, Philosophy, and Doctrine. He is the author or editor of numerous books, including most

~ Owen M. Phelan ~

Owen M. Phelan is Associate Professor of Church History at Mount Saint Mary's University and Seminary. Dr. Phelan holds an M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Notre Dame, where his concentration was medieval history. His Ph.D. dissertation was entitled “The Formation of Christian Europe: Baptism under the Carolingians.” He specializes in late antique and early medieval history. His articles have appeared in journals such as the Journal of Ecclesiastical History and the Harvard Theological Review. Currently, he is working on a book examining the role of baptism and sacramental thinking in Carolingian Europe.

~ Fr. Stephen Ryan ~

Fr. Stephen Ryan, a member of the Order of Preachers, is an Associate Professor of Sacred Scripture in the Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception at the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, D.C. He received his licentiate in Theology (S.T.L.) from the Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception (1994), and his Ph.D. in Hebrew Bible from the Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations at Harvard University (2001). He has published an edition of God and His Image: An Outline of Biblical Theology (San Francisco: Ignatius Press, 2007) by the late Dominique Barthélemy, O.P. and his most recent publications include an article on the ancient versions of the Book of Judith and book reviews in The Thomist and the Catholic Biblical Quarterly.

~ Fr. Jared Wicks, S.J. ~

Fr. Jared Wicks, S.J., gained his Th.D. in the Faculty of Catholic Theology of the University of Münster, where he heard lectures given by Prof. Joseph Ratzinger. He taught at the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago from 1967–79 and at the Gregorian University from 1979–2004. His research and publications have treated the theology of Martin Luther, Vatican II, and especially Dei Verbum. He served on the world-level Catholic–Lutheran dialogues on church and justification and on the church’s apostolicity. After moving to John Carroll University, he joined the US Catholic-Lutheran dialogue that produced the consensus document, The Hope of Eternal Life in 2011. In late 2011, Fr. Wicks became scholar-in-residence at the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio.
William Wright is an associate professor of theology at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, PA. A specialist in New Testament studies, his work focuses on the Gospel according to John, the history of biblical interpretation, and the relationship between biblical studies and Catholic theology. He is the author of Rhetoric and Theology: Figural Reading of John 9 (Walter de Gruyter, 2009) and is the co-author (with Fr. Francis Martin) of The Gospel of John, forthcoming in the Catholic Commentary on Sacred Scripture Series (Baker Academic).

Christine E. Wood received her Ph.D. in Systematic Theology from Marquette University, Milwaukee, in 2011. Her dissertation was entitled, “The Metaphysics and Intellective Psychology in the Natural Desire for Seeing God: Henri de Lubac and Neo-Scholasticism.” In light of a clear distinction between Suarezian and Thomistic theologies in the early twentieth century, her research investigated de Lubac’s concerns over the “extrinsicist neo-scholastic” theology of the nature-grace relationship. Dr. Wood currently teaches Scripture, Systematics, and Moral Theology at John Paul the Great Catholic University in San Diego.